

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Upon providing on-line vehicle information using an information providing apparatus that belongs to a vehicle manufacturer, and a user terminal possessed by 5 a user, information (e.g., including photographed images during assembly, position information during transportation, and the like) associated with the progress status of a specific vehicle corresponding to identification information which is received from the 10 terminal and specifies the user is acquired from information associated with the progress status of a plurality of vehicles before shipping, which information is stored in a progress management DB, and the acquired information is provided to the user 15 terminal from which the identification information was output.